

Trenton, New Jersey, October 28th, 1926.

William P. Walter, Esq.,
Chief of Police.

Dear Sir:-

On April 24th, 1914, Patrolman Maurice Murphy made the following report, which appears on the Private Blotter of the Second District on the above date:

"Mrs. Jessie Easton, who conducts a rooming house at 338 S. Broad Street reports to me that Mary Burton, who is living in her apartment at the above address, conducted by Mrs. Easton has three children and is not fit to take care of them. The children are always crying for something to eat. Rebecca Markham, who has a room next to Mrs. Burton has men in the bed room until 3:00 A.M."

On the Docket for May 4th, 1914, I find that the following arrests were made: Mary Burton, 338 S. Broad St., and Joseph Pessotta, 22 years, charged with Adultery at the address of 338 South Broad Street, arrested by Patrolman Feenane and Ed. Schnorbus.

On May 6th, 1914, Patrolman Schnorbus and Feenane raided the rooms of Mary Burton and arrested her for maintaining a Disorderly House at 338 South Broad Street. Also arrested her daughter, Mamie, age 17 as a witness. No. 338 South Broad St. is a rooming house conducted by Mrs. Jessie Easton and Mrs. Buton rented from her.

Mrs. Burton and Joseph Pesotta pleaded guilty to the charge of Adultery and was fined $25.00 and costs and placed on Probation. The case of the Disorderly House did not come up.

At the time of the raid at the Burton rooms, at 338 South
